

Founded on Quality

Modern VideoFilm's top priorities are QUALITY and SERVICE, and for these, Modern is known to have set the highest standards in the industry. In the early eighties, Modern VideoFilm set a worldwide standard by establishing the first dedicated quality control department in a post-production facility. Since that time, "QC", as it is commonly known, has become an industry standard around the globe. Today, Modern VideoFilm has eight dedicated quality control suites as well as a highly trained QC staff, working 24 hours a day - 7 days a week, to meet client needs and drop-dead deliveries.

Focused on Service

Modern VideoFilm's focus on client service also sets us ahead of the rest. MVF has, in its 25 years of business, distinguished itself as an industry-leading company capable of not only going the extra mile, but having the technology and talent to face the industry's most complex challenges. Modern was first to offer a full-time staff of specially trained television post-production client representatives to guide projects through the facility. Our Client Reps. set the standard for other facilities posting television shows. Modern understands that television is a 24 / 7 business, and client reps., sales staff, and operations personnel are available at a moments notice, 24 hours a day to answer questions, guide your project, and help meet your deadlines.

Big Company Strength with a Small Company Feel

At Modern VideoFilm, our goal is to provide the strength of size with the friendliness and flexibility of a small company. Modern has significant resources to handle any technical problem, no matter how big or small.
